Province wants your opinion on marijuana best practices

Elizabeth Cameron
For Metro | Calgary

Age of access, distribution and potency will all be under consideration as the province looks for Alberta's thoughts on pot.

The province is set to begin online engagement with Albertans about several important decisions that have to be made in the next year.

One of the key considerations: the age at which one should be able to purchase and consume marijuana.

The Canadian Psychiatric Association (CPA) recently published its position — that people shouldn't be able to purchase recreational cannabis before age 21, with restrictions on potency until 25 due to concerns around pot's effect on brain development.

"Now that the (federal) legislation has been tabled, we must place the mental health of Canadians at the forefront of the public policy conversation," said Dr. Renuka Prasad, president of the CPA, in a statement.

There's a lot of ground to cover before July 2018, when the federal government wants recreational marijuana to be legal.

Minister of Justice Kathleen Ganley will outline Friday how Albertans can participate and the questions her government will ask.

"We are working hard to meet (the federal government's) ambitious deadline," said press secretary Veronica Joubinville.

She said the ministry will consider recommendations from the federal government's task force on legalization, feedback from Albertans and the advice of officials about potential public-health impacts.

East Village street party to last the entire summer

Popup shops, entertainment and art enliven retail junction

Aaron Chatha
Metro | Calgary

East Village is popping with the kickoff of a summer pop-up retail junction.

Housed in vibrant, multi-coloured storage containers, vendors will be lighting up the lot behind the National Music Centre (4 Street and 8 Avenue SE) for the next few months, alongside live music and plenty of event space to sit and hang out.

"The first day has just been phenomenal," said Lori Rath, of Rath Bicycle. "So many people, terrific location — couldn't be better."

Rath's business, usually run out of her home, specializes in restoring vintage bicycles.

For the summer, they're renting out bikes from the popup junction for Calgarians to ride around East Village's bike paths.

According to the Calgary Municipal Land Corporation (CMLC), the idea is to draw people to the East Village, and create a gathering spot while residents await construction of a community shopping centre planned for 2019.

"Creating inviting spaces where people will gather and connect is a big part of our master-plan vision for East Village," said Susan Veres, senior VP at CMLC.

"At East Village junction, neighbourhood residents and visitors alike will be drawn to experience art, music, innovative and educational programming, comfy lounging areas and great company."

In total, there are 12 tenants in the space, which include Lululemon, Alora Boutique, Rath Bicycle, Wrinkle & Crease and Family Squeezed Treat Box. There will be regular live music performances from local artists, through a partnership with Springboard Performance container.

And, of course, there will be food trucks, with the occasional guest appearance by Village Brewery.

East Village Junction will be open from noon to 8pm Thursdays and Fridays and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturdays, Sundays and holiday Mondays. It will run until the end of September.

For more information, visit www.evexperience.com.

Third candidate wants to lead united right

Alberta's two conservative parties have yet to complete a merger, but a third candidate now says he wants to unite the right.

Calgary lawyer Doug Schweitzer announced Thursday he plans to will seek the leadership of the new United Conservative Party if it is created after a vote in July.

The 38-year-old said Premier Rachel Notley's economic policies are making things worse for a provincial economy already knocked to the mat by low oil prices.

"I think Albertans want a plan," Schweitzer said in an interview. "They want to know you've got a jobs plan but you also understand the social issues."

He said voters want substance, not "one-line zingers on Twitter and ratcheting up the noise in a partisan way."

Schweitzer has deep roots in conservative parties in two provinces. He ran Manitoba's Progressive Conservative party almost a decade ago and helped steer the leadership campaign of former Alberta premier Jim Prentice in 2014.

It was thought he would be a candidate in Alberta's latest PC leadership race. In the end, he did not run, but supported the plan by eventual winner Jason Kenney to unite the PCs and Brian Jean's Wildrose party.

Both Kenney and Jean have already said they would run for the new party's top job.

Both have long experience in federal politics as former Conservative MPs, but Schweitzer said his lack of front-line experience will not harm his campaign.

"As I've travelled across Alberta, the one thing people never say is, 'You know what we need? More career politicians,'" he said.

"People want to know that you have a plan."

COMMUNITY

Vandals smash window, steal books, leave graphic images

Helen Pike
Metro | Calgary

It's a story of disappointment, followed by happiness and faith in the community spirit.

This week Sara Polzen, assistant general manager of the Glamorgan Community Association, was checking on one of their community little free libraries when she noticed the glass window protecting their books had been smashed.

"I think somebody did it probably over the weekend. It was fully stocked on Friday, we know, but we don't check it every day," Polzen said.

Peeking inside she noticed someone had taken almost all the books out, and what they left behind wasn't pleasant. She didn't want to specify, but told Metro that someone had tucked pamphlets with graphic images that would be disturbing for children to see inside the remaining books.

After this incident, she said they might be checking the book box more often, and urges others to do as well.

"It's disappointing," Polzen said. "We're happy to have it, it took us a long time to get one and the community's been exceptional in putting books in, it's just disappointing to see pointless vandalism."

To warn parents, and the community at large, she posted about it on the Glamorgan Community Association Facebook. And the response really was heartwarming.

The library is now fully stocked and community members are continuing to add to the collection.

"I was surprised, pleasantly," Polzen said. "I would like to say thank you to the people who have stepped up and restocked it for us. It's very much appreciated."

The little free library is a pretty new addition to the community and was just erected in November on the community association's property.

Police open clinic for homeless

VULNERABLE PEOPLE

Centre's aim is to reduce jail time, improve mental health

Lucie Edwardson
Metro | Calgary

Vulnerable and homeless Calgarians will soon have a one-stop-shop for their housing, mental health, addictions, health and justice related needs.

SORCe opened its doors in 2013 and currently offers a housing first approach as well as mental health and addictions resources to Calgary's homeless and vulnerable.

But, come July SORCe, is expanding with the opening of the Alberta Health Services run Cross Roads clinic that will staff 25 addictions and mental health workers that can directly refer clients to treatments — medical and psychological — available on site. It's the first model of its

Staff Sgt. Frank Cattoni said the opening of Cross Roads Clinic will make it so clients don't have to go anywhere else for a medical, addictions or mental health appointment. JENNIFER FRIESEN/FOR METRO kind in Canada.

"I don't know if people really understand how forward thinking this is in terms of SORCe really wanting to meet the needs of people who otherwise just cycle through our justice and health systems and don't have their actual health and service needs met," said Julie Kerr, senior operating officer for community, rural and mental health services with AHS.

Kerr said they know this population has difficulty managing time, getting from place to place and keeping appointments.

"There are lots of barriers to them making scheduled appointments. We're hoping that this will reduce the barriers to them accessing the services they need without having to make an appointment or going to another location," she said.

SORCe is lead by Calgary Police Service

Staff Sgt. Frank Cattoni with in-kind contributions of staff from 17 agencies including AHS, the Calgary Homeless Foundation, local shelters and the provincial government.

Cattoni said they know the model of a multi-dimensional and multi-disciplinary approach is extremely successful with homeless and vulnerable populations.

"The data proves the success you have when you put someone in a housing first apartment with wrap around care. The impacts to the health and justice system are massive," he said.

"When I got that data I just about fell out of my chair. I thought, 'Holy-moly, we're having a big impact.'"

During a 12-month period between April 2015 and March 2016 Cattoni said clients reported an 82 per cent reduction in days in jail, 79 per cent reduction in days in the hospital, 73 per cent reduction in police interactions, 61 per cent reduction in EMS and emergency room usage and a 44 per cent reduction in court appearances.

SORCe (and soon to be Cross Roads) is located next to the Calgary Central Library on the City Hall LRT platform (316 7 Ave. SE).

2,500

In 2016 SORCe had more than 2,500 client interactions. This is a 28 per cent increase in interactions since 2013.

Love your body on your wedding day and every day!

Roberta Segar

If you have a wedding planned let me begin by congratulating you and your fiancée on your decision to demonstrate your love with the bond of marriage. Call me old fashioned but it still makes me tear up with emotion at the significance of the depth of love and the commitment that a marriage symbolizes. A marriage is truly a cause for celebration.

Your wedding may well be the biggest single celebration in your life. The day will be recorded for posterity in photos that will be shared for generations. Much attention is given to the gown, the dresses, the tuxedos, the beauty of the venue, the flowers, the centerpieces and other décor. Everyone wants to look their best and all eyes are on the bride and groom. It is your day! What could possible make it better? Maybe a little CoolSculpting!

CoolSculpting® is the revolutionary medical treatment that freezes away fat. Developed by Harvard scientists, it is backed by over 70 clinical trials proving its efficacy. It is an award-winning treatment that delivers transformational results without needles, surgery or downtime. More than four million CoolSculpting® treatments have been performed worldwide. It is the number one body contouring treatment in the world because it really does work! To learn how it works and to see before and after examples of treatment results go to:

www.skinpossible.ca/calgary-coolsculpting

CoolSculpting is not intended for general weight-loss. Weight-loss comes with diet and exercise, but sometimes despite all your best efforts a stubborn area of fat remains that just won't go away no matter what you do. Fat around the waist, on the abdomen, love handles, bra fat on the upper back, and male chest fat can be eliminated with CoolSculpting. CoolSculpting can also be used to treat fat on the inner and outer thighs and the upper arms. We can even treat small areas of fat such as the fat that causes a double chin.

CoolSculpting® can help you look your best on your wedding day, and every day. After the treatment the fat clears gradually. Patients may start to see results as early as three weeks after the treatment and will experience the most dramatic results at between one and three months.

Skinpossible has performed more CoolSculpting® treatment than any other clinic in Alberta. All of our treatment staff have advanced training at CoolSculpting® University. Why does this matter? Because the treated fat will be gone for good and correct placement of the applicators is imperative to ensure you achieve the best possible contour.

If you would like to know what CoolSculpting® or any of our other treatments can do for you simply call and book your free consultation. Evening and weekend appointments are available.

APPRECIATION

Last year, 14 moms had their babies with help from the EMS

Jennifer Friesen
For Metro | Calgary

As Desirae Viswanathan inched closer to her due date, she thought was ready.

She practised her breathing and her positions — but little did she know she'd be giving birth to her son in an ambulance parked outside her apartment.

"It progressed pretty quickly," she said. "I just remember getting to a point where I thought, 'I don't think I can get back into the car.' We had to phone 911, and it was the right call because I don't know what we would have done without (the paramedics)."

It's been 14 months since Desirae gave birth to Sachin, and on Thursday afternoon she had the chance to thank the two paramedics who helped her deliver her son.

Grant Orban and Chris Kremer arrived just in time; Sachin took his first breath merely 10 minutes after they got Desirae into the ambulance.

"It was a pretty easy delivery," laughed Orban. "Well, easy for me, not so easy for her. But then there was a beautiful, healthy baby boy and that's the best outcome you could hope for."

Last year, Emergency Medical Services assisted 14 mothers with out-of-hospital births in the Calgary area. In celebration of National Paramedic Services Week, May 28 to June 3, five of those families were reunited with the EMS crews who helped them through those births.

As Desirae carried a wide-eyed Sachin next to the two paramedics, she said she didn't think she'd ever have the chance to say thank you.

"We wanted to say how appreciative we were to them," she said. "You don't always have the chance to do that. It's awesome."

Sachin's birth was the first delivery Kremer had ever been involved with, and while he admits it was "a bit terrifying," it was also rewarding.

"I'd almost describe it as a magical experience," said Kremer.

"So much of what we deal with is negative — overdoses and deaths and all sorts of negative aspects to people's lives. Then to suddenly have this positive outcome while on a call and bring a life into the world, it's just incredible."

Library playing a new tune

ARTS

Not just books; 150 instruments will be available to borrow

Make some noise for the Memorial Park Public Library.

On Thursday, the library announced that it would now not only be the home of books, but of musical instruments, too.

As part of Sun Life Financial 150 projects for Canada, they have chosen the library system as a hub for making arts more accessible. In Calgary, this translates to a musical library.

Their donation of 150 instruments and $140,000 will kick-start the program. It's a great launch to what Calgary Public Library Foundation CEO Paul McIntyre Royston hopes will be a successful instrument drive to bolster the available collection.

"People can borrow them for three weeks; if there's not a hold on them they can borrow them

The Memorial Park Library is now filled with music after a Sun Life Financial donation helped incorporate an instrument borrowing program. Calgary Public Library Foundation CEO Paul McIntyre Royston and musician k.d. lang were on hand for the launch. HELEN PIKE/METRO for another three weeks," said McIntyre Royston. "Late fees are tiny, they're like 25 cents a day. The goal is to engage people."

He added that this program goes along with their new vision for the library as a culture hub.

good for the city," said Grade 9 student Joshua Dalida. "It gives more people opportunities."

Right now they have violins, ukuleles, mandolins, guitars, and full-size keyboards — they even have certain types of percussion instruments and sheet music for people to try.

"Obviously I'm super excited. We've seen an evolution take place in the Beltline right around where Memorial Park Library is," said Coun. Evan Woolley. "As the community changes and adapts it's truly incumbent on the library to do that and we're really seeing this happen today."

Woolley said the library isn't just about books anymore and this new-to-Alberta program is helping what's become a public gathering space stay relevant.

He said not only is he excited to see the park that the library sits on fill up with musicians this summer, but also he hopes to take advantage of the instrument borrowing system as well.

"I grew up playing piano for much of my life and music has been part of my family forever," said Woolley. "It's super exciting."

During the launch event on Thursday, artist k.d. lang spoke about the merits of the program. She herself donated $10,000 to help it grow.

"This is such an amazing opportunity, I wish that the Consort library had this because I probably would have been a bongo player," she joked.

HIGH FLOW RATE

Warning to stay off Bow River

Thinking of floating down the Bow River? Don't.

Various City of Calgary agencies, including the Fire Department and Calgary police are advising against taking to the rushing river with watercraft as the flow rate has increased.

Citizens should be cautious around the river banks because fast-moving water could cause erosion.

"The current flow rate on the Bow River is 293 m3/s — which is higher than we've seen in the last two years," said Carol Henke, public information officer with the Calgary Fire Department. "Runoff from melting snow in the mountains is causing very cold water temperatures, increased floating debris and high turbidity in the Bow River, which makes for very poor visibility and dangerous conditions."

The CPS marine unit and Fire Department will be monitoring the river while the advisory is in place, but they are hoping citizens stay off the river until conditions improve.

HOW TO GET RID OF KNEE PAIN ONCE AND FOR ALL... WITHOUT DRUGS, SHOTS, OR SURGERY

Now, in Calgary, AB, one doctor is helping local residents with knee pain live more active, pain-free lives.

Living with knee pain can feel like a crippling experience.

Let's face it, your knees aren't as young as you used to be, and playing with the kids or grandkids isn't any easier either. Maybe your knee pain keeps you from walking short distances or playing golf like you used to.

Nothing's worse than feeling great mentally, but physically feeling held back from life because your knee hurts and the pain just won't go away!

My name is Dr. Jack Kucheran, owner of Northside Wellness Centre. Since we opened 33 years ago, I've seen hundreds of people with knee problems leave the office pain free.

DO YOU HAVE ANY OF THE FOLLOWING CONDITIONS?

- Arthritis
- Knee pain
- Cartilage damage
- 'Bone-on-bone'
- Tendonitis
- Bursitis
- Tendonitis
- Crunching & popping sounds

If you're suffering from these conditions, a new breakthrough in medical technology may completely eliminate your pain and help restore normal function to your knees.

Finally, You Have An Option Other Than Drugs or Surgery!

New research in a treatment called low level laser therapy, or cold laser, is having a profound affect on patients suffering with knee pain. Unlike the cutting type of laser seen in movies and used in medical procedures, the cold laser penetrates the surface of the skin with no heating effect or damage.

Cold laser therapy has been tested for 40 years, had over 2000 papers published on it, and been shown to aid in damaged tissue regeneration, decrease inflammation, relieve pain and boost the immune system. This means that there is a good chance cold laser therapy could be your knee pain solution, allowing you to live a more active lifestyle.

Professional athletes like Lance Armstrong and team members of the New England Patriots rely upon cold laser therapy to treat their sports-related injuries. These guys use the cold laser for one reason only...

It Promotes Rapid Healing Of The Injured Tissues.

Before the FDA would clear the cold laser for human use, they wanted to see proof that it worked. This led to two landmark studies:

The first study showed that patients who had cold laser therapy had 53% better improvement than those who had a placebo. The second study showed patients who used the laser therapy had less pain and more range of motion days after treatment. If the cold laser can help these patients, it can help you too.

Although there are different types of lasers, the Calgary Flames have 8 of our type of laser systems.

Could This Non-Invasive, Natural Treatment Be The Answer To Your Knee Pain?

For 30 days only, I'm running a very special offer where you can find out if you are a candidate for cold laser therapy.

What does this offer include? Everything I normally do in my "Knee Pain Evaluation". Just call before July 1st 2017 and here's what you'll get...

- An in-depth consultation about your problem where I will listen... really listen... to the details of your case.
- A complete neuromuscular examination.
- A full set of specialized x-rays to determine if arthritis is contributing to your pain.
- A thorough analysis of your exam and x-ray findings so we can start mapping out your plan to being pain free.
- You'll see everything first hand and find out if this amazing treatment will be your pain solution, like it has been for so many other patients.

Until July 1st 2017 you can get everything I've listed here for only $49. The normal value for this type of evaluation including x-rays is $250, so you're saving a considerable amount by taking me up on this offer. Remember what it was like before you had knee problems... when you were pain free and could enjoy everything life had to offer. It can be that way again. Don't neglect your problem any longer – don't wait until it's too late.

Here's what to do now:

Due to the expected demand for this special offer, I urge you to call our office at once. The phone number is 587 812-0882.

A new treatment is helping patients with knee pain live a happier, more active lifestyle.

Call today and we can get started with your consultation, exam and x-rays as soon as there's an opening in the schedule. Our office is called Northside Wellness Centre and you can find us near the Peter Lougheed Hospital just across the street from Value Village. Tell the receptionist you'd like to come in for the Knee Evaluation before July 1st 2017.

Sincerely,
Dr. Jack Kucheran, D.C.
#16, 3434 34th Ave NE
Calgary, AB T1Y 6X3

P.S. Now you might be wondering...

"Is this safe? Are there any side effects or dangers to this?"

The FDA cleared the first cold laser in 2002. This was after their study found 76% improvement in patients with carpal tunnel syndrome. Their only warning – don't shine it in your eyes.

Of course at our office, the laser is never anywhere near your eyes and we'll give you a comfortable pair of goggles for safety.

Don't wait and let your knee problems get worse, disabling you for life. Take me up on my offer and call today 587 812-0882

Festival puts local comic creators at the forefront

SCENE YYC

Panel One event returns for its second year, 20 tables bigger

Aaron Chatha
Metro | Calgary

From panels to, uh, panels, Panel One is back with a second bigger, badder and much improved Comic Creator Festival.

The Panel One Festival is like Calgary Expo, except stripped of the celebrities and focused exclusively on unique and locally created comic projects. The idea is to celebrate home-grown talent — and that's from the guys and gals producing web comics in their basement to creators like Fiona Staples and Ryan Ferrier, who have produced bestsellers for the likes of Marvel and DC.

One of the featured artists this year is Chelsea Crutchley, who runs the web comic Stray Sod. Crutchley will be hosting a panel on making a book — like a physical book. She'll help go through the pitching, printing and self-publishing process.

She'll also be on a panel about history and culture in comics.

Crutchley has been working on Stray Sod since 2013. The story follows an insecure teen looking for her missing sister in Ireland.

A panel from Chelsea Crutchley's Stray Sod, which will be featured at the Panel One Comic Creator Festival in Calgary.

"She's aided by a flirtatious elf with a hidden agenda," Crutchley explained. "It draws on Irish folklore and it was an idea I had back in art school. It started as a film concept, and the idea stuck with me after graduation."

For her, comic making is the way to go — it lets her control every detail, from design and words to sets and lighting.

“It really does build this sense of community between the fans and the creators.” Ashley Hartley

Other panels this year include a workshop by famed Saga artist Fiona Staples, who will cover her drawing style and journey through the comic book industry.

Ashley Hartley, marketing manager for the festival, promised this year's event will be about 20 tables bigger than the last one.

In 2016, when Panel One launched their first festival, it was a dip in the water, seeing if the community would come out and support local artists. Calgarians quickly embraced the idea.

"The more diversity we get within any arts and culture movement is really important, and makes it accessible," Hartley said.

"When you know something is local, as a fan, you stand behind it more, because you can say, 'Well, they're from my hometown.' It really does build this sense of community between fans and the creators."

This year's Panel One Festival takes place June 3 at the Hillhurst Sunnyside Community Association, from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Elizabeth Wettlaufer enters the provincial courthouse in Woodstock, Ontario on Thursday, where she pleaded guilty to eight counts of first-degree murder. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ex-nurse pleads guilty to 8 murders

CRIME

Wettlaufer
now one of Canada's most prolific killers

She had become "overwhelmingly angry" about the direction of her career and life and said God was telling her to kill.

On Thursday, Woodstock nurse Elizabeth Wettlaufer pleaded guilty to murdering eight elderly patients at the three long-term care homes where she once worked. When Justice Bruce Thomas of Superior Court asked if she was admitting to fatally injecting her victims with insulin for no medical reason, she replied: "Yes, your honour."

Wettlaufer also pled guilty to attempting to kill four other people, and to two charges of aggravated assault.

Now one of the most prolific serial killers in Canadian history, she is facing what could be the harshest sentence ever doled out in this country.

If Justice Bruce Thomas of the Superior Court accepts the sentencing recommendations jointly put forward Thursday by both the prosecution and defense, the 49-year-old would be sentenced to eight consecutive 25-year life sentences for first-degree murder and an additional 54 years for the other charges. She is due back in court on June 26.

Family members in the packed courtroom sobbed as Wettlaufer quietly responded "guilty" as the names of each of the victims were read aloud in court.

Some left in tears as details of the murders were aired throughout the day, first by an agreed statement of facts that took several hours for the prosecutor to read aloud and then through a two-and-a-half-hour videotaped confession with police.

The police investigation into Wettlaufer began last September after they became aware of information she had given to the Centre for Addiction and Mental Health in Toronto. After being released from CAMH, Wettlaufer agreed to speak with police and appeared before a judge.

She was diagnosed with adult anti-social behaviour, major depressive disorder and mild opioid/alcohol dependence, court heard. In the videotaped interview with detectives, she said that she used drugs to fuel her addiction, including from a safe where deceased patients' medication would be stored.

Format of hearings

The quasi-judicial format of family hearings at the National Inquiry into Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women and Girls is drawing some criticism. Jack says the formal processes of the inquiry, such as the swearing-in of witnesses, is making many uncomfortable. CP

Financial support for lumber industry

Natural Resources Minister Jim Carr is announcing $867 million in financial supports to help lumber producers and employees weather the impact of punishing new U.S. tariffs on Canadian softwood exports.

The package includes loans and loan guarantees to help cushion the blow for forestry companies and to help them exploring new markets and innovations.

The help includes $260 million to help diversify the market base for Canadian lumber products, allow the Indigenous forestry sector to explore new initiatives and extend work-sharing agreement limits to minimize layoffs.

The money also includes measures to support workers who want to upgrade their skills and transition to a different industry.

Cabinet discussed the options for a package last month, but the federal government wanted more input from the provinces via the special working group Carr established in February.

U.S. pulls out of Paris accord

ENVIRONMENT

Decision is a blow to global efforts to stem climate change

U.S. President Donald Trump has announced his intention to withdraw the United States from the historic Paris agreement on fighting climate change, dealing a blow to the international effort to address a problem he calls a hoax and isolating the U.S. from almost the entire world.

Trump added that he would attempt to negotiate a climate deal on different terms, though he did not say what kinds of changes would satisfy him.

The absence of the U.S. may make other countries, developed and developing, feel less compelled to meet their own commitments under the accord.

"In order to fulfil my solemn duty to protect America and its citizens, the United States will withdraw from the Paris climate accord, but begin negotiations to re-enter either the Paris accord or a really entirely new transaction on terms that are fair to the United States," Trump said in a speech in the White House Rose Garden on Thursday afternoon. "So we're getting out, but we will start to negotiate."

Donald Trump said the U.S. is ready to begin negotiations on another deal. GETTY IMAGES

The withdrawal of the world's biggest economy and second-biggest emitter of carbon dioxide could have far-reaching consequences for the climate and for international affairs. Trump's decision, which triggered a global chorus of condemnation, increases the chances that the world will experience the most catastrophic consequences of sharply rising temperatures, such as deadly droughts and heat waves, severe coastal flooding and mass migration.

It was unclear what Trump would seek to renegotiate. The national emissions reduction targets central to the deal are voluntary. Trump, in other words, could essentially have negotiated with himself, making the U.S. target less ambitious while remaining in the agreement.

But he framed the deal as a kind of global conspiracy to take advantage of the U.S., imposing few burdens on other top polluters while hampering American firms with supposed restrictions he did not specify. He called it "very unfair, at the highest level, to the United States."

He aimed his rhetoric at the heartland voters unhappy about the decline of traditional manufacturing, saying the deal would keep factories from closing.

+ DETAILS

The withdrawal makes the U.S. the third country to put themselves outside of the pact. The other two are Syria, which is embroiled in a civil war, and Nicaragua, which believes the deal was not stringent enough.

"I was elected to represent the citizens of Pittsburgh, not Paris," he said.

That memorable line drew a response from Pittsburgh's Democratic mayor, Bill Peduto.

"As the Mayor of Pittsburgh, I can assure you that we will follow the guidelines of the Paris Agreement for our people, our economy & future," he said.

At very least, Trump's decision signals a major shift in the U.S. approach to international relations. Using the kind of nationalist language favoured by his chief strategist, Steve Bannon, he called it a "reassertion of American sovereignty." His critics in both parties described it as evidence of a retreat from America's traditional position of global leadership.

PHILIPPINES

Terror ties doubted in shooting

Gunshots and explosions erupted after midnight in a hotel and casino complex near Manila's airport, sending hundreds fleeing into darkened streets early Friday in what police said was an attack by a lone gunman with no apparent links to terrorism.

A Filipino operative for Daesh, in a quick communiqué, took responsibility for the attack. But police cast doubt on any such links. It was not immediately clear if anyone was killed in the attack or even if it had concluded.

The violence unfolded as Muslim militants aligned with Daesh fended off government forces for a 10th day in the southern city of Marawi. That unrest had sparked fears that the militants might attack elsewhere to divert the focus of thousands of troops trying to quell the siege.

The gunman stole gambling chips, shot an LED monitor and set gambling tables ablaze by pouring gasoline on them, but did not fire at people he met, officials said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ancient DNA has been recovered from 3,400-year-old Egyptian mummies

DECODED by Genna Buck and Andrés Plana

HOW WHALES GOT SO HUGE

They're the biggest animals to have ever lived on Earth, as far as we know. And a new study says baleen whales — the group of gargantuan filter-feeders that includes bowheads, fin whales, and the biggest of all, blue whales — all became enormous rather quickly, about 4.5 million years ago. Why? Scientists suspect it has to do with their diet.

BIG FACTS

Blue whales can engulf 110 tons of water and half a million calories' worth of krill in a single gulp

When a blue whale exhales, the spray from its blowhole can shoot nine metres in the air

Blue whales grow up to 30 metres long and can weigh 136,000 kg, maybe more.

THE FIGHT FOR FOOD

Whales evolved to enormous sizes just as ice sheets formed over much of the northern hemisphere. Nutrient-rich glacier runoff attracted clouds of plankton and krill: whale chow. But these buffets appeared at different times in different parts of the world, requiring whales to sojourn across the sea.

Smaller whales couldn't feed as much or travel as far; many went extinct.

Bigger whales stored more energy, ate more and could swim vast distances. They were more likely to survive and reproduce.

TURTLE REVOLUTION

A teeny-tiny Ontario town has totally tamed its tally of tortured turtles. Back in 2003, 10,000 creatures, including rare Blanding's turtles, met their deaths every year on the 3.6-km highway connecting the peninsula hamlet of Long Point on Lake Erie to the mainland. But the community rallied for change, erecting fences, flashing signs and under-highway turtle tunnels. Careful scientific monitoring has shown an 89 per cent reduction in turtle mortality.

Soren still a child at heart

INTERVIEW

Canadian director brings potty humour to latest flick

Richard Crouse
For Metro Canada

David Soren calls Captain Underpants: The First Epic Movie, his adaptation of Dav Pilkey's best-selling books for kids, subversive.

The animated film is the story of rambunctious fourth graders George Beard and Harold Hutchins (voiced by Kevin Hart and Thomas Middleditch). Best friends, they write, illustrate and sell homemade comics about their favourite character, Captain Underpants. "Most superheroes look like they're flying around in their underwear," they giggle. "This guy actually does." They are also pranksters so often in trouble there are two chairs outside the principal's office labelled, "Reserved for George" and "Reserved for Harold."

Soren says that wild temperament "is one of the things that made the books successful and controversial at the same time. I've never personally understood the controversy, specifically in the case of the books. There is a rebellious spirit to those characters. They are not little angels and I think that is part of why kids love reading them."

George and Harold's principal, Mr. Krupp (voiced by Ed Helms), is a grumpy old man who hates comics, Christmas and kittens among other things, and has a plan to put an end to the pranks and annihilate their friendship.

"They've got a terrible principal," Soren continues, "who is doing horrible things to their school, cancelling music and arts and putting an electronic door opening in his office instead. (It's good to) stand up to that kind of authority, it deserves to be questioned."

"These days it is not a bad thing for kids in general to have their own voice and stand up for themselves and have rights. I always saw that as a really inspiring part of those books and a key to their success."

"I think of my son now. He's in fourth grade and in the earlier grades there was a lot more creativity, a lot more play in the education and suddenly it gets a lot more regimented. It gets more like school and it is sort of frustrating to watch how that can be beaten out of kids. You want to protect that aspect of creativity."

The Toronto-born, Hamilton-raised animator has worked in Los Angeles for 20 years, working on films like The Road to El Dorado, Chicken Run and Shrek, and writing and directing Turbo, the story of a snail who dreams of racing in the Indianapolis 500. It's a resumé that suggests he's hung onto his childlike creativity.

"I think it is something I never lost. You need a little bit of that nonconformist attitude when you are an artist, and making movies in general. Especially when you're trying to get a point of view across. Movies are best when they have a point of view and if they get too watered down or become too generic they cease to have an identity anymore."

has an identity. How many other movies feature a talking toilet or a musical Whoopee Cushion symphony?

"Obviously you can't make a Captain Underpants movie without potty humour," he says. "But we did hold ourselves to a very high standard. We would not go there unless it was truly very funny."

When I compliment Soren on giving a character the wonderfully silly name Diarrheastein, he's chuffed. "I will take that as a great compliment," he laughs.

DIGITAL EFFECTS

Facelifts without knives

Johnny Depp is 53 but he doesn't look a day over 26 in the new Pirates of the Caribbean movie — at least for a few moments. There was no plastic surgeon involved, heavy makeup or archival footage used to take the actor back to his boyish Cry Baby face, however. It's all post-production visual effects, and after a decade of refining the process since Brad Pitt ran the gamut of time in The Curious Case of Benjamin Button, it's becoming commonplace in major Hollywood movies.

Depp is just the latest megastar to get the drastic de-aging treatment on screen, joining the ranks of Robert Downey Jr. (in Captain America: Civil War), Michael Douglas (in Ant-Man), Kurt Russell (in Guardians of the Galaxy Vol. 2) and scores of others getting digital facelifts to play younger versions of themselves. In the old days, a lucky unknown look-alike (or look-enough alike) could have scored the part of young Jack Sparrow or Tony Stark. Now, if the film has the budget, the stars get to have it both ways — and audiences get a nostalgic flashback.

Lola Visual Effects is responsible for Depp's transformation, and most of the Marvel tricks, which have included making Chris Evans scrawny for the original Captain America and Hayley Atwell some 70 years older for the sequel.

Lola was the pioneer behind

Benjamin Button, too, and sells its services to all the major studios. It's one of a handful of vendors that have gotten in the so-called "beauty work" business. It's meant to go unnoticed (like removing a blemish), and buried under mountains of confidentiality agreements.

"Working on the human face is one of the, if not the most challenging thing to do," said Trent Claus, visual effects supervisor for Lola VFX. "People can tell when there is something amiss. Even if they can't put their finger on what is wrong, they can tell that something is wrong." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

'It was quite disturbing'

Jessica Chastain sparks a debate about women in film: Film critic Peter Howell

Actress Jessica Chastain made news at the close of the Cannes Film Festival by happily observing what a raw deal women got in the movies she saw as a member of the Palme d'Or jury.

She spoke truth, but also begged two questions: Which films was she referring to exactly? And was Cannes 2017 really so terrible for women?

"This is the first time I've watched 20 films in 10 days, and I love movies," she said Sunday evening, at the press conference following the awarding of the Palme and other prizes.

"And the one thing I really took away from this experience is how the world views women from the female characters that I saw represented," she said. "And it was quite disturbing to me, to be honest — and there are some exceptions, I will say."

"But for the most part I was surprised with the representation of female characters on screen in these films. And I do hope that when we include more female storytellers we will have more of the women that I recognize in my day-to-day life. Ones that are proactive, have their own agencies, don't just react to the men around them. They have their own point of view."

Chastain's argument is unassailable when directed at the movie industry as a whole, especially when referring to the big Hollywood films that were nowhere to be seen at Cannes 2017. Women are under-represented and often disrespected by the industry, both in front of the camera and behind it.

There were many films at Cannes where women had significant roles, two of which were honoured by Chastain's jury: Sofia Coppola won Best Director for The Beguiled, a Civil War suspense in which Nicole Kidman heads a southern all-girls school dispensing both care and justice to a male intruder, played by Colin Farrell; and Diane Kruger took Best Actress for her lead role in Fatih Akin's In the Fade, playing a woman seeking pay-back for the terrorist bomb that killed her husband and young son.

Bong Joon Ho's sci-fi actioner Okja had fascinating women as both heroes and villains: Young South Korean star Ahn Seo-hyun was marvellous as the defender of a genetically modified giant pig whom Tilda Swinton's over-the-top corporate boss was seeking to turn into bacon.

A lot of this comes down to perception, which is always a difficult thing to argue. Chastain is a woman and I'm a man, so she's more attuned to the subtleties of female characters in films than I could ever hope to be, try though I might.

Chastain was spot-on when she observed there was a dearth of female storytellers in the Palme competition — just three of the 19 directors were women. But female directors don't necessarily tell female stories: Lynne Ramsay tells a male-dominated one with You Were Never Really Here, in which Joaquin Phoenix is a damaged hitman out to rescue an abducted girl. He won Best Actor and Ramsay won Best Screenplay from Chastain's jury.

To be fair, Chastain's comments about women brought nods of agreement from several of her fellow eight jurors, including jury president Pedro Almodovar. And juror Maren Ade, a German filmmaker, seconded Chastain's call for more women directors in the competition: "We're missing a lot of stories they might tell."

However, the Palme competition is lacking in more than just female participation, as juror Will Smith noted.

"A couple of Black folks won't hurt none for next year, either," he said. "We'll talk about that another time."

To which Ade exclaimed: "True — black women!"

These issues will never be resolved to everybody's satisfaction. But sparking debate about how we view the world is something that Cannes and all great film festivals aspire to, and on this occasion, evidently succeeded.

We're all wonder women

SUPERHEROES

Boys also need strong female role models, says actress

In a world of only women, there are no phallic structures.

At least that's how Patty Jenkins imagined the island home of the Amazons and their heroic princess Diana, who grows up to become Wonder Woman.

"Like columns? They didn't make that much sense to me," Jenkins said in a recent interview. "They felt like an imposition on landscape, which didn't feel like something that women are jonesing to do."

As the director of Wonder Woman, Jenkins is creating new worlds for women both onscreen and off. Not only did she help dream up the look of the Amazon island and hire scores of actresses to serve as its resident warriors, she's the first woman to direct a major superhero movie, and her success could pave the way for others.

As a child, she was inspired by Wonder Woman, describing Lynda Carter's portrayal on TV as "the embodiment of everything that I wanted to be as a woman."

"When I was playing Wonder Woman, I was able to do incredible things and save the world," the 45-year-old filmmaker said.

That's the feeling she hopes to evoke with viewers of Wonder Woman, in theatres Friday. Gal Gadot plays the title character, who discovers her superpowers and fights for justice alongside humans after following a charming spy (Chris Pine) to London during World War I.

The Israeli-born Gadot didn't grow up with Wonder Woman, but she was always on the lookout for powerful characters to play.

"Usually the women are the damsel in distress or the heartbroken woman or the sidekick, but in real life it's not the case. In real life, we bring life. We have babies. We have careers. We are so many other things," said Gadot, a 32-year-old married mother of two.

"Wonder Woman symbolizes the magnificence of a woman and how amazing women are. And I think that it's an important movie not only for women and girls, but it's also great for boys and men.... You can't empower women if you don't educate the men and you don't teach the boys. So as much as it's important for girls to be exposed and see this movie, it's important for boys to have a strong female figure that they can look up to."

Wonder Woman was created in 1941, yet this is her first solo feature film. Jenkins wanted to bring her to the big screen for more than a decade, but studios doubted the appeal of the lasso-wielding superheroine.

"I don't understand why somebody who has had zero big blockbuster representation for 75 years still has 15 little girls a minute coming to my door dressed as her every Halloween — like how does that not equal dollar signs?" Jenkins said.

Connie Nielsen, who plays Diana's mother, Amazon queen Hippolyta, also didn't grow up with Wonder Woman but had myriad other models of powerful women as a child in Denmark.

We bring life.
We have careers.
We are so many things.

Gal Gadot

"The Denmark I grew up in was a Denmark in which women were, in fact, fully liberated and the whole world had been opened up to us," she said.

"In the magazines in the early '80s, it was men who were photographed doing the vacuum cleaning in the ads for vacuum cleaners, and women were no longer posing on the Ford Mustang."

So Nielsen felt entitled to question why, on an island populated by only women, her character would wear high heels. She and Gadot, both statuesque, wear wedges in the film.

"I actually had that conversation several times, and Patty was adamant," Nielsen said. "She really felt like you stand a different way (in heels), and you do."

The costumes, including the wedges, had to be considered during the physical training, which included horseback riding, archery and swords(wo)manship. For Robin Wright, who was raised on the Wonder Woman TV show, training and shooting with the Amazons was the best part.

"I think it was a little daunting for the men because it was very unusual. I think there were like 120 Amazons," said Wright, who plays the warrior Antiope, Diana's aunt and teacher. "That's a different energy on the set, and great for us. We just felt like a team of women that had each other's backs."

She called Jenkins "the biggest cheerleader of them all."

With the film's arrival this week, Jenkins is thinking about what Wonder Woman might mean for a new generation of aspiring superheroes — and filmmakers.

"I am a filmmaker who wants to make successful films, of course. I want my film to be celebrated," she said. "But there's a whole other person in me who's sitting and watching what's happening right now who so hopes, not for me, that this movie defies expectation. Because I want to see the signal that that will send to the world."

Snow White ad fails

MOVIES

Promotion for new animated film catches criticism

Actress Chloe Grace Moretz apologized Wednesday after the promotional materials of her upcoming film — Red Shoes & the 7 Dwarfs — were criticized for body shaming women.

Marketing materials included a billboard at the Cannes Film Festival last week which depicted a thin woman in red heels next to a shorter, heavier version of herself holding her heels. The tagline promoted a Snow White who was no longer beautiful.

A trailer posted by South Korea-based Locus Creative Studios showed two dwarfs hiding in Snow White's bedroom watching her undress after a night out. After kicking off her red heels, the Snow White character is shown as a heavier woman lounging in her underwear. The company removed the trailer from its YouTube channel after social media users criticized the film's ads.

Moretz wrote that she stands behind the film's script, which she says tells a powerful message to young women. "The actual story is powerful for young women and resonated with me," she wrote. "I am sorry for the offence that was beyond my creative control."

What Is True Fulfillment and How Can It Be Attained In Our Lives?

A lecture based on the work

In the Light of Truth THE GRAIL MESSAGE

For all of us, our pursuits are driven by the need to attain to some fulfillment, regardless of whether we define it in material or spiritual terms. For some, it is the attainment of some earthly goal, financial security, relationship status, or social or political aspirations. For others, their quest goes beyond what is solely material. But, even upon attainment of some of these goals, many still find themselves longing for something more. Something yet undefined and unquenchable. What is it that we seek that can lead finally to a sense of true fulfillment? What is it that can truly and finally fulfill us? How can we attain to this sense of true fulfillment? The speaker, drawing insights from the work "In the Light of Truth", the Grail Message, will share a perspective that may lead to the recognition of a path to the attainment of this longed-for fulfillment.

Family takes centre stage for Shakira

MUSIC

Mother of two recently released her 11th album

Shakira may be a Grammy-winning, multiplatinum singer, but these days she's calling music a hobby.

Singing has taken a back seat to motherhood for the 40-year-old Colombian sensation, who has two sons, ages 4 and 2.

"For years I spent my life pressing pause on those things that are now my priority, like having a family. I pressed pause on that. Now, I hit play," Shakira said with a laugh. "I formed a family, and it's the most wonderful thing, the most important thing to me."

Shakira said it was difficult to approach making new music after spending so much time with her family. When she started working in the recording studio, she said she dealt with writer's block and didn't want to be away from her children.

"I was in front of this white canvas and sort of panicking, and I was, at the same time, conflicted because I didn't want to stop spending time with my kids, but I also wanted to attend to my own needs as a creator, as an artist, as a producer," she said.

She decided to release music in her own way and at her own pace. Instead of putting out a full album, she released songs when she wanted without announcing when an album would finally come.

"It completely changed my game and it incentivized me to make more music and not take this whole project as a whole body of

I used to be the centre of my whole world ... and now my kids and my family are that one priority.

work, but just concentrate all of my energy on each song and take and do all of the efforts but one song at a time ... instead of looking at this project like a big Everest mountain that I had to climb," she said. "I began to see it as a ... fun road trip."

"It was more fun than any of my previous albums because before I had many demands (and) requests by others."

Before she released her 11th album, El Dorado, last week, Shakira dropped four singles, including La Bicicleta with Carlos Vives — which won song and record of the year at last year's Latin Grammys — and Chantaje, a No. 1 hit on Billboard's Hot Latin songs chart with fellow Colombian singer Maluma.

Shakira co-wrote all of the tracks and said they are very personal.

"I have no other way to make music. It's the only way I know," she said.

Tennis star lauds learning gender at the time of birth

Serena Williams wants everyone to slow down with all of the "It's a girl!" talk prompted by her sister Venus.

The pregnant tennis star sent out a tweet on Thursday to "clarify what Venus said" after the older sibling appeared to accidentally let something slip during a TV interview with Eurosport at the French Open, when she said, "She's going to call me 'Favourite Aunt.'" Venus' use of the pronoun

"she" led people to assume Serena is expecting a girl.

But a day later, Serena wrote: "I think the surprise of knowing what you are going to have on that very special day you give birth is prob the best surprise you can ever have."

She continued: "I did not grow up with brothers, only sisters and we all say 'she' more than 'he.'"

Serena announced her pregnancy with Reddit co-founder Alexis Olhanian in April, but has not hinted at the baby's gender.

She is due in the fall and is taking the rest of this season off, but plans to return to the tour in 2018.

Serena sat in the stands during Venus' second-round victory at Roland Garros on Wednesday.

JESUS HAS THE ANSWERS

Perhaps, you have gone round to seek solution to that long-lasting problem from people, but none is forth coming: the good news is that there is somebody who can take over the problem, and that is Jesus. Even Himself said, "Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." (Matthew 11: 28). Jesus is ever ready to take over your problems, but you must surrender your life to Him.

Montreal beyond bagels

FOOD & DRINK

Renowned restaurateurs, plus local lunch delights

Renée S. Suen
travel@metronews.ca

Back in 2006, the now-defunct Gourmet magazine published an issue devoted to the culinary prowess of Montreal. Moved by a desire to devour every suggestion, I ate my way through the city, guided by my Post-it flags.

From Toqué! to Joe Beef and Au Pied de Cochon, my first foray into Montreal's unique and enviable dining scene was an introduction to its luminaries: Normand Laprise, Martin Picard, David McMillan and Fred Morin. Built on Québécois recipes, traditional haute cuisine and locally grown ingredients, these chef-restaurateurs are responsible for the experiences that continue to define Canadian cuisine.

Ask anyone for Montreal recommendations and I guarantee most will be food-related. The must-tries are endless: smoked meat, raw-milk cheeses, brew-pubs or Montreal-style bagels.

I discovered the link between those flavours and the 120 cultural communities who settled along Boulevard St-Laurent on Fitz & Follwell's Flavours of The Main walking tour. A trove of knowledge, guide Louis Trudel deciphers everything encountered on the Destination Canada-recognized Signature Experience.

We focus on the north end, navigating through historical and significant landmarks, and taste examples of Montreal's rich immigrant heritage.

In Little Portugal, I learn the boulevard served as a physical divider between language, ethnicity and class as I bite through the flaky crust of Boulangerie Séraphin's pasteis de natas (Portuguese custard tarts).

"English-speakers populated the west; French-speakers stayed in the east," explains Trudel, "and immigrant communities, like the Chinese, Eastern European, Italian and Portuguese, was the bridge between them."

In old-world Mile End, we stop at Fairmount Bagel for a sesame bagel, and watch the staff churn out the iconic honey-water-boiled then wood-oven-

Long-time regular Morty Braustein, pictured with third-generation owner Sharon Wilensky, can remember when the Wilensky Special was only 17 cents, in 1952. RENÉE S. SUEN/FOR METRO baked numbers.

Before the next stop, I get a hushed warning: "There's always mustard and it's never cut. The only option you get is if you want cheese."

Gotcha. Intimidation quickly melts away as we belly up to the linoleum counter at Wilensky's Light Lunch. It's like we've stepped into 1932, save for the updated prices. I take a cue from the regulars and order the special: an all-beef bologna and salami sandwich. It's incredible. An umami bomb tucked within griddle-pressed cornmeal-dusted crusty golden layers of happiness.

The humble sandwich draws my attention from the home-made cherry cola and surrounding tchotchkes.

On the other end of the budget and culinary spectrum, juxtaposing this backdrop of culture and history, there's Casino de Montreal's controversial new L'Atelier de Joël Robuchon.

While critics credit the world's most decorated chef for his merit, Robuchon's residency has many Montreal-based restaurateurs wagging their fingers of discontent specifically at the rumoured $11 million spent on the project and the perception that government assistance was given to building a French import, and not into nurturing the local scene.

The opening volley of house-made breads uses Québec-sourced wheat and cheeses. Buttery fist-sized sea scallops from the Magdalen Islands are simply seared and topped with ginger and chives. Free-range Cerf de

WALK IT OFF

Fitz & Follwell's Flavours of The Main is divided into Segment 1 (Chinatown, former Red Light district, Jewish Quarter, and Little Portugal) and North City (Mile End and Little Italy, ending at Jean-Talon Market). Each three-hour tour can accommodate up to 12 people. The cost is $65 for adults, which includes food and drink samples, a bottle of water, and public transportation.

Boileau venison is a marvel of supple rare flesh snuggled close to seared Marieville foie gras, and punctuated by tart Notre-Dame-de-Lourdes cranberries.

Montreal isn't simply bagels and smoked meats, it boasts a sophisticated food scene. Here, an international headliner won't distract hungry diners from delicious local gems — Toqué!, Joe Beef or Wilensky's. Nor does it aspire to. Instead, L'Atelier's ability to fit in confirms that Montreal's established scene can welcome a highly respected culinary brand, and hold its own.

The world takes notice.

INVENTIONS

A Canadian inventor helped us light the way

Sean Plummer

Before geologist, author and chemist Abraham Gesner invented kerosene, North American homes and streets often were lit by whale oil.

But Gesner, who was appointed New Brunswick's official geologist in 1836, developed a way to refine liquid fuel from coal, bitumen and oil shale.

In 1850 he founded the Kerosene Gaslight Company, which was entrusted to light the streets of Halifax among other Canadian cities.

This new lamp oil was perfected by 1853, and Gesner patented kerosene in 1854. That same year, he expanded into the American market, founding the North American Gas Light Company with a factory in Long Island, New York. That company was eventually absorbed into the oil monopoly known as Standard Oil, and Gesner returned to Halifax in 1863 after selling his patents.

Today, Abraham Gesner is remembered as a father of the modern-day petroleum industry.

The kerosene that once lit these lamps was invented by Canadian geologist, author and chemist Abraham Gesner.

Though they're not quite a desert, the Athabasca Sand Dunes provide plenty of sand for adventurers eager to explore the most northerly dunes in the world.

Located in northwest Saskatchewan, the dunes stretch for some 100 km along the south shore of Lake Athabasca.

The environment is fragile and was designated a provincial wilderness park in 1992. Scientists estimate that the dunes were created some 8,000 years ago, toward the end of the last glacial ice age. SEAN PLUMMER

CHAMPIONS LEAGUE

Madrid star is scoring for fun ahead of final against Juve

Cristiano Ronaldo has saved his best for last.

Ronaldo enters the Champions League final playing his best soccer of the season, peaking at the right time as Real Madrid gets ready to take on Juventus on Saturday in Cardiff, Wales.

"I feel good," Ronaldo said before travelling to Britain, "in great form."

The Portugal forward paced himself like never before this season, skipping several games so he could stay fresh and thrive in the final stretch. And the time spent resting paid off, as he scored 14 goals in his last nine matches, for his best run of the season.

He scored two consecutive hat tricks in the Champions League, one in the quarterfinals against Bayern Munich and another in the semifinals against Atletico Madrid. In Madrid's final three Spanish league games, he scored five goals to lead the team to its first title in five years.

Ronaldo is not hiding his confidence ahead of Saturday's game. "We must go into the match with humility, but showing attitude and character, showing that we are the better team," Ronaldo said. "Juventus is a great team, but I think we are better. I have the feeling that we are going to play a great match and win. We are thinking positive."

It had been a lacklustre season by Ronaldo's standards, and his slow start kept him from having a chance of reaching 50 goals for the first time since 2009-10, his debut season with Madrid. He has scored 40 goals so far.

He also struggled early in the Champions League, scoring only twice in his first eight games, but ended with eight goals in his last four matches, becoming the first player to break the 100-goal mark in the competition.

"We are in a great moment and we have to take advantage of it," Ronaldo said.

He credited his great run to coach Zinedine Zidane's ability to keep the team competitive despite constantly rotating the squad.

"I'm in better shape physically than in other seasons," the 32-year-old Ronaldo said. "Zidane intelligently managed the squad." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Canuck Buchanan makes history in final

Kadeisha Buchanan became the first Canadian to win the Champions League as Lyon defeated Paris Saint-Germain 7-6 in a penalty shootout Thursday.

Lyon goalkeeper Sarah Bouhaddi scored the winning spot kick, seconds after PSG counterpart Katarzyna Kiedrzynek sent the ball wide on her penalty attempt.

Fellow Canadian Ashley Lawrence scored on her penalty kick for PSG.

Both teams had chances in a scoreless regulation 90 minutes. While Paris was on the front foot in the first half, Lyon began to press as the second half wore on.

The 30 minutes extra time was a tight affair.

The win gave Lyon the treble, having already won the French league and Cup. The defending European champion, it beat VfL Wolfsburg 4-3 on penalties last year after the game finished tied 1-1 after extra time.

It was a painful loss for PSG, beaten by the same penalty shootout score by Lyon in the French Cup final.

IT'S ALL IN THE STARS Your daily horoscope by Francis Drake

Aries March 21 - April 20
This is a challenging day at work. You feel it in the morning, and you feel it in the afternoon as well. Bummer. Yes, happy hour beckons strongly!

Taurus April 21 - May 21
Be patient with kids today, because there will be challenges. Likewise, this is a rocky day for romance. Patience is your best ally to help you keep a lid on things.

Gemini May 22 - June 21
Do your best to keep the peace at home and with family members today because someone will be cranky. This mood starts in the morning and continues into the afternoon. Not good.

Cancer June 22 - July 23
You might be short-tempered in the morning, which in turn makes dealings with someone older a bit strained. Someone might even criticize you. Hang in there.

Leo July 24 - Aug. 23
For some reason, this is not a happy money day for you. You might quarrel about finances or a possession in the morning. In the afternoon, you feel broke or squeezed. Good luck.

Virgo Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
Today the Moon is in your sign; however, you likely will be at odds with a parent or boss in the morning. Best to zip thy lip. In the afternoon, an older family member might be on your case. Oh well.

Libra Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
Avoid controversial subjects today, especially about politics, religion and racial issues. They will only create arguments and resentment. 'Nuff said

Scorpio Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
Be patient with a female friend or acquaintance today so to avoid an argument. Do not fall into worry mode or critical thinking this afternoon.

Sagittarius Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
A squabble with someone in a position of authority might occur this morning. Don't let this get you down in the afternoon. It's important for Sagittarians to be optimistic.

Capricorn Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
Steer clear of controversial subjects today. Likewise, don't argue about travel plans. Nevertheless, criticism from others might be a downer.

Aquarius Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
Avoid arguments about inheritances and shared property today, because they will simply be a waste of time. Postpone decisions for tomorrow, which is a great day!

Pisces Feb. 20 - March 20
Be accommodating with others today, because the Moon is opposite your sign. Avoid family arguments in the morning. Avoid discussions with bosses in the afternoon. (Yikes!)
